MISSOULA--

Danny On, Whitefish, a silviculturist for the U.S. Forest Service office at Kalispell, who is well known for his wildlife photography, will present a slide-lecture entitled "Wildlife and Wildlife Habitat Photography" Wednesday, April 14, at the University of Montana in Missoula.

Wednesday's presentation, which is open to the public without charge, will be at 8 p.m. in room 131 of the UM Science Complex. The slide-lecture is cosponsored by the UM Wildlife Society and Forestry Students Association.

On, an ardent skier, has been a smokejumper and has had other jobs with the USFS. Besides having his photos displayed in Missoula and other western Montana communities, the forest ecologist's works also have been featured in the "Montana Outdoors" and "Game Management" magazines.

On, a native of Redding, Calif., received his bachelor of science and master of science degrees from UM.
